

Leadership

The California Small Farm Conference is by its very design a collaborative undertaking. The Small Farm Conference is led by representatives of public agencies and private organizations that are dedicated to supporting and sustaining small farmers in California.

The volunteer members of the Board of Directors and the Local Planning Committee, each of whom represents a different public or private agency, work together over the course of several months to craft an educational conference that speaks directly to the needs of California's small scale farmers.

The California Small Farm Conference is fortunate to have a large number of public and private agencies that volunteer their time to assist in organizing and supporting the conference.

The conference is aided by the work of its conference coordinator, Betsy Shea, of Shea-Campbell, Inc.

To get involved with the Small Farm Conference, contact us.